Sometime in the near future Mr. Newcombe, The Courier-Gazette's county representative, is likely to call upon you at home. He calls to interest you in becoming a subscriber to the paper. If you will turn the matter over in your mind you must conclude that so far as a home newspaper is concerned you can scarcely hope to do better than with The Courier-Gazette. It comes to you twice every week, laden to the guards with the news you care most to read about—the news of your own town and circle of friends.

Twice every week, 104 papers, for two dollars a year.

Is there a "famine" in raw hides? There has been an increase of over thirty per cent. in the price of that article since the framing of the Dingley law.

The farmers of the South are not finding much support for the theory of the close relation between silver and farm products in the increased value of their cotton crop this year in the face of the fall in silver.

So Argentina proposes a retaliatory duty on our kerosene, pine and farm implements. Well, as the value of those articles sent her last year amounted to only about one-sixth of the value of the wool and hides she sent us, our farmers will be willing to keep the bars up if she desires.

And now cotton-seed has joined the procession of the farm products which are advancing in price. Indeed it is pretty hard to find any article of farm production which has not advanced during the time that silver has been falling and the Dingley law going into operation.

Minnesota and the two Dakotas will send to market this year 144,000,000 bushels of wheat. The farmers there deserve their good fortune. They stood by sound money and saved their states, with the exception of South Dakota, in which the mining element managed to get a plurality of 183 for Bryan. But South Dakota will not repeat the mistake.

The theory of a close relation between prices of silver and farm products has received another back-set from the recent statements of the value of the cotton crops. The increase in value in the United States this year compared with two years ago is fully $30,000,000, although the quantity produced is much less. When it is considered that silver has fallen 20 per cent in value meantime, it is hard to imagine how the silver theorists explain this advance. They haven't the cry of "a famine abroad" as an excuse in this case.

"What striking resemblance there is between 1896 and 1897 and the years of our Lord 1878 and 1879! In 1878 the air was resonant with denunciation of the wicked men who would not issue all the greenbacks which a suffering people demanded. John Sherman was denounced on all hands, Samuel J. Tilden declared that only a vast central reservoir of coin would protect us against the failure of the proposed return to specie payments in 1879. The farmer was at his worst, ruined, destroyed, eaten up by taxes and usury. Down almost to the very day of redemption the croaking came with dismal and damnable iteration. When the 1st of January came no crowds thronged the Sub-Treasury corridors. Hardly a greenback was presented and we got back to the currency of the world without a movement or a jar. From that moment prosperity began."—Speaker Reed in New York World.

Russia's exports of grain, according to the latest advices, have amounted to only about 65 per cent. this year of those of 1896, the total of all kinds of grain amounting to 143,000,000 bushels during the first eight months of the present year. When there is added to this fact the extreme shortage in the crops of this year, it is apparent that Russia will do little if any exporting and supplying the markets of the world, to which India, Australia, and Argentina will contribute little if anything, thus leaving the United States the chief food supply of those sections which have to go outside their own territory for grain. This accounts for the advance in the price of wheat, and sustains the claim of the Republicans in the last fall campaign that the prices of wheat depend upon supply and demand, and are not controlled by or related to the use of silver.

People who have any doubt about the return of business prosperity will probably be interested in the figures on bank clearances, which are of course the most accurate business barometer that can possibly be produced. The reports from the great financial centers show that the clearances for the week ending September 18 are larger than at any time since the closing months of the Harrison administration, are fifty per cent greater than those of one year ago, and seventy-five per cent greater than those of two years ago.

Those dreary and depressing statements showing the enormous number of business failures all over the country during the four years of the Cleveland administration are rapidly disappearing. The business failures during the second week of the present September were only 169, while those of the corresponding week of 1893 were 346, and they range in that vicinity during the corresponding week in each year of the Cleveland term.

It was very thoughtless on the part of those Georgia Democrats to bring about that little "affair" in which a colored Republican was shot from ambush because he was an office-holder, without consulting the Ohio Democrats. It has placed the latter in a very awkward position, for they hoped to get the support of a large element of colored Democrats of that state on local issues this time, but, of course, this Georgia instance absolutely destroys that prospect.

The National Democratic party of Nebraska concluded an enthusiastic State Convention last week. A full ticket was placed in the field. The ticket is: Supreme Judge, James Woolworth of Omaha; State University Regents, J. Sterling Morton and Judge James C. Crawford. The ticket contains three of the most distinguished Democrats in the State. Mr. Woolworth is President of the National Bar Association, Morton is too well known to require mention, and Crawford is one of the oldest and ablest lawyers of northwest Nebraska. Warren Switzer of Omaha, chairman, characterized W. J. Bryan as a "meteoric marmalade," the only disturbing factor in the nation, chattering his everlasting story of a dead issue, a cause that had been repudiated by the country for all time, a disturber of the public peace, and little short of an outlaw." There was no division of sentiment as to the utility of placing a ticket in the field. All agreed that the party was opposed to that branch of Democracy that has followed Bryan, that has gained wonderfully since Bryan was defeated, and that, as it is the future hope of the old line Democrats in Nebraska, a ticket at this time was absolutely necessary.

The London Chronicle publishes an extract from a letter written by Mr. Gladstone in which he says: "The plain, shame, and mischief of the last two years in the Eastern policy transcended entirely the powers of any language I could use concerning them. The sum is this:—Firstly—A hundred thousand Armenians have been slaughtered, with no security against a repetition, and with greater profit to the assassins. Secondly—Turkey is stronger than at any time since the Crimean war. Thirdly—Greece is weaker than at any time since she became a kingdom. Fourthly—All this is due to the European concert, that is, the mutual hatred and distrust of the powers."

The Ohio Democrats who are running away from their silver platform have plenty of company now. Chairman Jones has recommended to the New York Democrats that they drop silver, and Senator Gorman is also engaged in the delightful occupation in his state of advising Maryland Democrats to perform the same act. The proposition to make something out of nothing was too thoroughly tested last year to make it a safe one this.

A Futile Effort.

We never make efforts to induce people to visit our store in search of mythical advertised bargains which do not exist or which are "just out." Such methods are dishonest and are certainly ultimately to prove futile. What we advertise, we have, and it is always exactly as represented. We are up-to-date grocers and we make careful selections of our stock. Anything in the market can be had of us.

Groceries Canned Goods Provisions Meats, etc.

Wait & Bond and Fawcett Cigars at Wholesale and Retail.

Summer Barden Truck Fresh and Crisp Every Day.

E. S. Farwell, THE GROCER, Corner Park and Union Sts.

The contrast between the gold surplus since the new administration came in and that during the Cleveland administration is very remarkable. Mr. Cleveland was compelled to sell hundreds of millions of dollars' worth of bonds to keep up the "reserve," while the Treasury Department has just notified the Sub-treasurer of New York that it has all the gold it needs and that he need not make any effort whatever to add to the accumulation.

A Futile Effort.

We never make efforts to induce people to visit our store in search of mythical advertised bargains which do not exist or which are "just out." Such methods are dishonest and are contrary to our policy. We want to prove that we advertise to prove truth. What we advertise, we have, and it is always exactly as represented. We are up-to-date grocers and we make careful selections of our stock. Anything in the market can be had of us.

The contrast between the gold surplus since the new administration came in and that during the Cleveland administration is very remarkable. Mr. Cleveland was compelled to sell hundreds of millions of dollars' worth of bonds to keep up the "reserve," while the Treasury Department has just notified the Sub-treasurer of New York that it has all the gold it needs and that he need not make any effort whatever to add to the accumulation.

AS BARDINER SEES HIM

The Gardiner Journal interviewed Joseph Greene last week with the following interesting result:

"No," he said in reply to the question, "this is not my first season as a star; I presume I must use that word although I don't like it; I played through last season and met with a reception that made me feel that there was a definite place for me in the profession at the head of my own company."

"Mr. Rose thought so, too, and assumed the direction of my affairs as far as the stage is concerned, while Mr. Herberman undertook the business side."

"Now must managers proceed in a very cautious way when they start a company. They first book the time, then engage the company and think of the plays last of all. I reversed the process. First the plays, then the company and then the dates. I did this because plays are the hardest to find."

"The result has demonstrated the wisdom of my course. I believed with Mr. Rose that the great theatre-going public wanted new plays, not the old material that every company has played and played again, but really new material. This Mr. Rose supplied and I am now playing six dramas all written specially for me."

"For example we open our engagement with the Silver King, a strong play, one that gives the greatest satisfaction, one that everybody knows, we follow it with newer and I believe, better plays so that our engagement for the week might be compared to a grand staircase, our Saturday night's performance being the topmost stair where we pause, confident in the belief that what we have done during the week is better than any company has ever done before in our special line."

"One thing in our performances is unique and appeals to all; the perfect manner in which the plays are detected. You do not see any shuffling about, or indecision, everything is clear cut and accurate. This is the result of constant rehearsal and the most untiring vigilance, for no matter how conscientious the actor may be he is too often apt to slight his part unless he is watched constantly."

Boucle and Astrachan Cloth Capes

We purchased in July 200 of the above garments and we guarantee to sell you a cape 20 per cent. less than we could if this cape had been purchased in August or September.

3d. This Cape is either with Empire or Plain back and is 37 inches deep, 186 inch sweep and our price is $10.00, better than we sold last season for $16.50.

4th. In this lot of Capes you will find a number of lengths, styles and trimmings at $12.50.

All of these Capes have the real Thibet, not the imitation which nearly all of the cheap Capes have.

Where Princes Are Made.

When a young prince of Japan wishes to learn the mysteries of chirography, young students bring paper, other materials, the ink and prepare the paint brush. The master expresses admiration for gesture and face, for no words must be spoken by him to the prince, his mouth being closed. He taught that his breath may now blow upon the face of the prince. The teacher must move about in the quietest manner and give no recommendation only.

How Dead Soldiers Look.

A British army surgeon is authorized for the statement that the cause of death is clearly shown in the expression of the face of a corpse on the field of battle. He states that those who have been killed by sword thrusts have a look of repose, while those killed by bullet usually have pain of an intense nature clearly depicted.

BARNATO IN THE COMMUNE

A writer of stories about Barthelemy Barnato says, in the Philadelphia Bulletin, that there is a circumstantial case against his high presence in Paris during the commune of 1871. In the latter break up of all social fabric he found his capacities of a paying order. For there is little doubt that his was the craft that enabled the shrewd and communards to realize the money needed to supply the sieves of war.

One day, during the gloom and stress of the government siege, the president of the Bank of France was confronted by an unheeded mob. The demand was explicit. They wanted all the gold in the bank's vaults.

He ordered a bloody labor and the mob accentuated the demand by all sorts of ferocious threats. It was in the height of this melee that a man who had been connecting the financial deputy of the commune rode up, adorned by a red sash and other insignia of the terrorists. He made his way through the vociferous throng and handed the governor of the bank a large envelope. While the officials were reading it the besashed emissary turned to the clamoring hordes and, in a tongue unknown to the mob, addressed them in a series of words, addressed to them a few sentences. A singular effect followed. A dozen of the ringleaders at once began haranguing the rioters. In a few minutes every one of them withdrew. The besashed personage remained in consultation with the governor and when it was ended withdrew. An hour later six covered wagons came to the bank and were laden with bags such as the bank always makes use of in transporting specie.

The communique appeared as the diamond ring in South Africa, a word the communards who had fled from France, were in exile in the region where Barnato had earned the million.

One day in the plenitude of his affluence he was waylaid, riding in the Grand, by a company of miners. One of them, by a few words, succeeded in gaining his private ear. This man was known as the most ferocious of the blood-thirsty gang who had taken part in the killing of the Emperor. He recognized Barnato as the emissary sent by the commune to the Bank of France, and the knowledge embled him to get in on the ground floor of the diamond deal. The tale goes on to tell that Barnato, who figured as Felix Barnette had fallen desperately in love with a figureante in the Folies Bergeres just as the war of 1870 broke out; that he had been in the trenches, and that he was one of the "Red" societies, exploiting the ardent patriotism of his coworkers and succeeded in getting several millions of the cash he had forced from the Bank of France. The tale, whether true or not, is by no means so impro-

able as the actual facts known in the man's mastery of the African diamond yields, far to do that he was forced put himself against such schemers Cecil Rhodes and the standard with the "dour" shiftness of the Boers, and particularly with that astute old f Uncle Kruger

"With all this close intimacy there is surprisingly little friction or ill feeling. There are, of course, at every point a few people who are disagreeable or hard to get along with, but they cause no more trouble in general than they do in their own households. They be- long, we feel, to our army family, and are accepted as such. We do not look just as we should overlook the faults of a husband or brother or sister. No distinctions between rich and poor are ever observed. There is occasionally question about calling upon new arrivals, but it is solely on account of anything discreditab! to the good name of an officer or his wife, the circumstances must be investigated before other families of the post will suffer. —Philadelphia Times
